What was advertised as a friendly soccer game between Washington and the Rangers, of the newly organized District League, on the Monument grounds yesterday, developed into a fiercely fought battle before the former nearned a 5-to-3 decision over the city's "baby" eleven.

If the league games are as closely contested as yesterday's supposed "friendly" affair, soccer fans of the District will be treated to some real competition when the rivals meet in circuit games.

Made to order soccer weather brought out a crowd numbering in the neighborhood of 1,000 fans. Though the weather favored the players, they were badly handicapped because of the sogy condition of the field. It was almost impossible for the athletes to get a toe hold to do any fancy kicking. The Washington players proved to be better "mudders" than they soon skidded and all data for the field. It was almost impossible for the athletes to get a toe hold to do any fancy kicking.
